

FROM THE MAYOR'S DESK

THIS MONTH I THOUGHT I WOULD TAKE SOME TIME AND UPDATE YOU ON SEVERAL THINGS THAT ARE GOING ON IN THE CITY.

First of all, our splash pad is now open in Nolan Park. After the water is activated, it runs for about fifteen minutes until it is activated again. The water is clean culinary water that is collected in a tank and then re-used to irrigate Nolan Park. We hope you enjoy this new feature in our park. Please take note of the new sod that was laid around the pad. It will be watered frequently, and please do not sit on it until it has taken root. Thank you.

On June 15, 2011 the Alpine School District Board held a joint meeting with the Eagle Mountain City Council. We appreciated the opportunity to discuss future planning of our city with the district. At that meeting they informed us that the district had completed their due diligence study on the potential sites for the new middle school. The school district told us that an agreement for the purchase of the middle school site property would be on the agenda for the June 21, 2011 meeting. The agreement was approved and the site chosen is the site that is north of our Mid-Valley Park on the west side of Sweetwater Road. The middle school will not be built unless the bond resolution passes in November. We will keep you informed as new information becomes available to us.

Lastly let's talk about the road construction projects in Eagle Mountain. The S.R. 73 project is moving right along. We are looking forward to the completion sometime in August. They should be finishing with the intersection at Ranches Parkway within the next week or so. The Pony Express Pkwy project will have the repaving completed this week, with the exception of the turn lane into Plum Creek at Fire Station #2 and the turn lane at SilverLake Parkway. There will be a micro surfacing of Pony Express Pkwy that will be taking place in late August and you may see some sealing going on between now and then. We hope that the majority of the orange barrels will be gone soon. We are glad to have these improvements occurring.

One final note, we have a couple of new restaurants that have opened. (Read more about them on pg. 3) Please make sure that you purchase from our local businesses. If we want to get more business to come, we must show that we support what is here and that it is viable to locate a new business in Eagle Mountain.

Enjoy the summer. It goes by so quickly.

Mayor Heather Jackson

Kids enjoy themselves at the Nolan Park Splash Pad opening on July 1. The Splash Pad hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily. To activate the water, wave your hand over the green post at the north east corner of the splash pad. It is on a timer system and may need to be reactivated during your play time there.

Smith co-owns the business with her husband, Robert. They are Eagle Mountain residents and wanted to locate their business here. The Smiths plan to offer cold weather friendlier fare starting in the fall, such as coffee and hot chocolate.

Wakeboard Park Plan Approved

Plans are moving forward for Utah's first wakeboard park to be located in Eagle Mountain. A site south of Pony Express Regional Park in City Center has been approved by the Planning Commission and City Council.

Working under the name Wasatch Wake Park, owner Darcy Hanks hopes to begin construction sometime this summer on land leased from the state School and Institutional Trust Lands Administration. There will be two phases of the park, with the first phase set to feature two 680-foot-long artificial lakes using 3 million gallons of water. The park will use two twenty foot towers with a cable system running between the towers to pull riders.

Hanks plans to keep the park open in summer and winter, with wakeboarding in the summer and snowboarding and possibly tubing in the winter.

Pricing is not set, but Hanks is considering $25 for a two-hour pass, $29 for a four-hour pass, and $35 for an all-day pass. Equipment rental and lessons will also be available.

Phase two is planned for one to two years after opening, featuring a larger, circular lake with six towers to allow for more riders at one time.

Eagle Mountain's location between the population centers of Salt Lake City and Provo was a large part of the appeal for Hanks to build the park here. Wakeboard parks are becoming popular around the country as a venue for enthusiasts to wakeboard without having to own a boat.

Horse Butte Wind Project Progresses

Representatives from 20 Utah cities gathered for a blade-signing celebration in June on-site at the Horse Butte Wind Project near Idaho Falls. Attendees toured the site and saw turbines in various stages of installation. Eagle Mountain is a participant in this project, which began construction in November 2010.

The Utah Associated Municipal Power Systems (UAMPS) project is a 57.6 megawatt wind farm in Bonneville County, Idaho. The 17,600-acre wind farm includes 32 turbines that each generate 1.8 megawatts. It is expected to begin operations by the end of this year.

The wind farm is a partnership between municipalities in Utah, California, Nevada, Idaho, and Wyoming - with Utah funding about 49 percent of the cost and receiving the same share of power. UAMPS is paying $143 million to build the wind farm. The farm will connect to Bonneville Power Administration and Rocky Mountain Power.
