MANY GOOD THINGS ARE HAPPENING IN THE CITY.

I'd like to provide an overview of some of what we have been working on over the past month.

Pony Express Pkwy

The widening project for Pony Express Pkwy is wrapping up. The contractor is currently working on storm drain infrastructure and is hoping to have the project completed (the last phase of widening from Lake Mountain Rd to Mid Valley Rd) no later than October 14. We will be glad to see this project finished and appreciate that we were able to work with the contractor to add the additional segment. The City will continue to pursue funding to widen the section from Mid Valley Rd to Bobby Wren Blvd.

Podcast

We have added a podcast to our line-up of information sources for residents. "Talking Up Eagle Mountain" is about 30 minutes long and allows listeners to sit in on discussions about city news, events, and programs. The style is conversational, usually involving three specialists and the mayor. So far we have had discussions on preserving open space for deer migration and other wildlife, road construction, economic development, and health & safety concerns for school children.

Transportation

Eagle Mountain and Saratoga Springs are teaming up on transportation. Sharing a border means having two different General Plans collide. Working out the differences in planning and coming up with something that works for the residents of both cities can be a real challenge. This is especially important to us since Eagle Mountain residents often use roads in Saratoga Springs. However, there is no denying the fact that we are better off working together than not. On August 27 both city councils, mayors, and city administrators met together to begin a joint effort in planning. We were also joined by representatives from Fairfield and Cedar Fort.

MAYOR'S BOOK RECOMMENDATIONS

This month marks the 232nd anniversary of the Constitution of the United States of America. The need for understanding our constitution and its history has never been greater.

“The American Covenant” by Timothy Ballard. Ballard is the Founder and CEO of Operation Underground Railroad. In this book Ballard gives essential perspective and context regarding our nation.

“The Five Thousand Year Leap” by Cleon Skousen explores the principles that shaped the constitution and enlightenment that set the stage for success of the “American experiment.” This book is an easy read for most age groups.

EMERGENCY PREPARATION TIP

Fires

Every year more than 350,000 homes in the United States are struck by fire. There are easy steps to take to reduce the chance that your home will be damaged, or anyone injured in a blaze - whether it starts inside or outside of your home.

Practice Home Fire Safety

- Have smoke detectors and fire extinguishers on every level of your home.
- Test and clean smoke detectors monthly and replace batteries at least twice a year.
- Check fire extinguisher pressure gauges monthly.
- Store matches and lighters out of the sight and reach of children.
- Do not overload electrical outlets or run cords underneath rugs.
- Inspect electrical cords for damage and replace or repair them if needed.
- Keep space heaters at least 3 feet from furniture and drapes.
- Clean the lint screen on your dryer before each use.
- Have your furnace inspected every year. Change filters several times each year.
- Store flammable materials and chemicals safely away from sources of heat. Clean fireplace, coal stoves and wood stove chimney every year.
- Thin bushes and trees within 30 feet of your home. Clear a wide area of dead wood and other fire fuels.
- Store fire wood at least 30 feet from your house.
- Create a family fire escape plan that shows two ways out of every room and a family meeting place outside. Practice it at least twice a year.

Know What to Do in a Fire

- Get out fast and stay out. Crawl low under smoke.
- Call to report a fire only from outside of the burning building.
- If clothes catch fire, stop, drop to the floor or ground, and roll.
- Cover your face with your hands.

If a Wildfire Threatens Your Home

- Shut off gas at the meter.
- Hook up garden hose and place lawn sprinklers on the roof.
- Wet or pull up vegetation within 15 feet of your home.
- Submerge water-resistant valuables in a pool or pond.
- Move patio furniture inside.
- Close windows and doors.
- Prepare to evacuate immediately, if necessary. Park the car facing your escape route and leave the doors unlocked and the keys in the ignition.

Seniors Start Meal Service Program

Ages 60+, others welcome

The Eagle Mountain Senior Council is partnering with Mountainland Association of Governments to offer lunch service at the Eagle Mountain Senior Center (1680 E. Heritage Dr.). Meals are offered on Wednesdays and Thursdays, except for the first Thursday of the month (due to the recurring Senior Lunch Bunch activity, held at area restaurants).

Following are some meal program requirements:

1. Seniors aged 60+ are asked to donate $3 per meal; others under age 60 are required to pay $6.
2. Anyone planning to have lunch is required to make a reservation by noon of the previous day by phoning 801-789-6660, and leaving a message. Those planning to eat at every offered lunch service may make advance reservations for the month (Note - if those with an advance reservation will miss a meal, they must notify by noon on the previous day at 801-789-6660.)
3. Each senior is required to register at their first meal and will be given a meal ID card.
4. A monthly menu will be provided via email (and posted on the City website calendar), as well as posted at the Senior Center. An alternate meal will also be available, which you must request when you reserve.
5. If there is food left over, seniors will be offered a second serving. If there is additional food left over, seniors may take food home. If there are full meals left over, seniors may donate another $3 and take a meal home.
6. Additional guidelines may apply.

Eagle Mountain Seniors enjoy a variety of activities at the Senior Center, including regular craft days, such as making Halloween porch decor out of bowling pins. Check the City website calendar for all Senior activities.

Wildlife in Eagle Mountain Series: American Kestrel

You're most likely to see them perched on telephone wires along roadsides, in open country with short vegetation and few trees. American Kestrels occupy habitats ranging from deserts and grasslands to alpine meadows. The American Kestrel is a petite falcon roughly the same size as the Mourning Dove, but with a larger head and wider tail. From a perch or hovering, they usually drop to the ground to snatch small mammals and insects. In Eagle Mountain City we have a community program that fosters their species.

Through the efforts of our resident raptor specialist, Shon Reed, along with many volunteers and in cooperation with Hawkwatch International and Rocky Mountain Power, there are more than 20 Kestrel boxes within our city. Several residents have volunteered private property for placing some of the boxes, and Austin Robinson made some of the boxes as an Eagle Scout project. Taylor

Duncan contributed to the Kestrel box project as well. One of the nesting boxes has a donated video camera which gives a close up look at Kestrel family life from the early stages of egg laying to hatching, the male and female caring for the new hatchlings and eventually observing them fledge.

"The Eagle Mountain Kestrel Project was started in response to a growing community, resulting in a loss of habitat," Shon Reed said. "We are a group of volunteers that monitor the nesting sites. Each nest is visited weekly during the nesting season by a volunteer to count eggs, nestlings and track adults. We are dedicated to preserving what habitat we can and providing nesting sites for these falcons. The American Kestrel has been in decline for more than 30 years and needs our help."

One of the attributes that makes Eagle Mountain so unique is its natural environment. The City is working to maintain as much of our natural surroundings as possible and to live in harmony with those creatures who have inhabited it long before we arrived.

Wildlife is an integral part of the culture in Eagle Mountain, as evidenced by the new Cedar Valley High School mascot - an American Kestrel.

Community

NEW: Public Art Display

The first public art display in Eagle Mountain has been established at the eastern section of Nolen Park, along Peregrine Rd. This project was started earlier this year when bird house kits were distributed to residents. Over 30 wonderfully creative bird houses were returned and have been attached to posts to build this public art display.

The project was sponsored by Eagle Mountain City in partnership with others in the community. The Eagle Mountain Arts Alliance (EMAA) helped distribute the bird houses and held a painting activity. Cole Thomas, a Boy Scout from Eagle Mountain treated the bird houses, attached them to the poles, and installed the poles as part of his Eagle Scout project. It is built in such a way to allow more bird houses to be added in the future if the community is interested.

Communities That Care: September is National Family Meals Month

Communities That Care (CTC) is celebrating National Family Meals Month™ in September and encourages families to share one more meal together per week.

Did you know that numerous studies underscore the long-term health, academic and societal benefits of consistently eating together as a family? Home-cooked meals nourish the spirit, brain, and health of all family members. Not to mention, people who frequently cook at home eat fewer and healthier calories. Additionally, regular family meals are linked to the kinds of outcomes that we all want for our children: higher grades and self-esteem and less risky behavior.

According to a 2013 Harris poll, only 30 percent of American families share dinner every night. Why is this? Juggling jobs, kids and the demands of a busy, modern life often come at the expense of family mealtime at home. But, this doesn't need to be the case. CTC is committed to helping your family be well together and will be offering resources throughout this month on the city's Facebook page.

In honor of Family Meals Month, Communities That Care is holding a contest. For a chance to win a family meal from Six Sisters Deli, post a photo to Facebook or Instagram of what a family meal really looks like in your home using both #eaglemountainfamilymeals AND #eaglemountaincity. A winner will be chosen randomly at the end of the month. Must be an Eagle Mountain resident to win. Posts must be public to be considered in contest.
